I use an old favorite multiband antenna on forty and eighty meters - the center-fed inverted V dipole, fed with true open wire feedline -sometimes known as "tuned feeders". Nothing new about this, except it seems to have been forgotten by many. One rule-of-thumb with antennas is that one which is optimized for one band, is superior to a multiband antenna, all other things being equal.

This antenna is being actively used at the QTH of KE5KJD, where comparisons have been made with three other antenna systems. About 20 stations were logged on each band and signal strengths (S-units) measured

In radio and telecommunications a dipole antenna or doublet is the simplest and most widely used class of antenna. The dipole is any one of a class of antennas producing a radiation pattern approximating that of an elementary electric dipole with a radiating structure supporting a line current so energized that the current has only one node at each end.

cases, cut the element for the lower frequency and let it serve double duty at the odd harmonic. In theory, we could fashion a four-wire antenna for the 80, 40, 30, 20, 15 and 10-meter bands.

The band structure of carbon nanotubes having certain (n, m) indexes can be easily calculated.A theoretical graph based on these calculations was designed in 1999 by Hiromichi Kataura to rationalize experimental findings. A Kataura plot relates the nanotube diameter and its bandgap energies for all nanotubes in a diameter range. The oscillating shape of every branch of the Kataura plot ...

BBC Radio Times - The BBC's Radio Times began weekly publication on September 28, 1923, and for many decades it was the BBC's main vehicle for communicating with domestic listeners in print. While I was working on my Antenna Auto-tuner project (see here: k6jca antenna auto-tuner), I discovered that the frequency reading of my HP 8640B at my "second" lab (Lizzie's place in the Californian gold country) was off by a few KHz. And so, when I finished my tuner, I decided that my next project would be to build a GPS Disciplined-Oscillator (GPSDO) that would then be the master frequency ...
